Scholarship & Academic practice

- Language, culture & attitudes
 - “Academic Tribes & Territories” (Becher & Trowler)
 - Must we choose between teaching & research?
 - Boyer (1990) “Scholarship Reconsidered”
 - Intellectual, scholar or teacher?
 - Professional / amateur
 - Is there scope for a civil/societal role?

What do we know about student learning?

- Student approaches to learning (SAL)
 - Sweden and UK
 - Martin, Saljo, Entwistle, Tait, Hounsell, etc
 - “surface,” “deep”, “strategic”
 - intention to reproduce or understand
- Surface approaches prevalent
 - linked to poorer learning outcomes (Ramsden 2003)
 - not necessarily linked to poorer grades/assessment (Richardson, 2000, Haggis, 2003)
- “learning environment” shapes the approach
 - Conceptions of learning;
 - prior experience;
 - teaching and learning context;
 - perception of the context/task to hand

What about the role of the teacher?

- Prosser & Trigwell (1994, 1996, 1997, 1999)
 - approaches to teaching
 - teacher-focused/information transmission
 - student-focused/conceptual change
 - link with teachers' conceptions of learning
- Biggs (2003), Ramsden (2003): 3 levels/theories
 - teaching as telling, or transmission
 - teaching as organising student activity
 - teaching as making learning possible
- Perception of control, workload, status of teaching, class size and student ability – all impact on approach taken.

Can we effect change in the teacher's conceptions that lead to change in the students' approaches?

Contemporary issues

- Impact of political, economic, demographic factors
- Science & technology research
 - Professional researchers/amateur teachers
 - Resentful teachers?
- Increasing technology in everyday life
 - Students' media literacy
 - Staff cynicism?

Technology's impact on teaching & learning ?

“...will fundamentally transform education.”

- Teaching Machines
- TV
- Videoconferencing
- Computer Aided Learning & Multimedia
- Intelligent Tutoring Systems
- The Web

RYS Finally Getting Off Its Ass And Readying Its Inevitable and Much-Awaited Return To The Blogosphere - Sept 1

We are all back from summer sojourns. One of us has the nastiest sunburn high on the thighs from a too-bare, too-sexy, two-piece. One of us went to Scotland and ate and drank until nearly unconscious. One of us stayed at home with a mewling child who seemed to go from sweet to sour in the course of a 4 week period. (One of us taught a summer grad class, but the money for that was just for beer,

What is the problem?

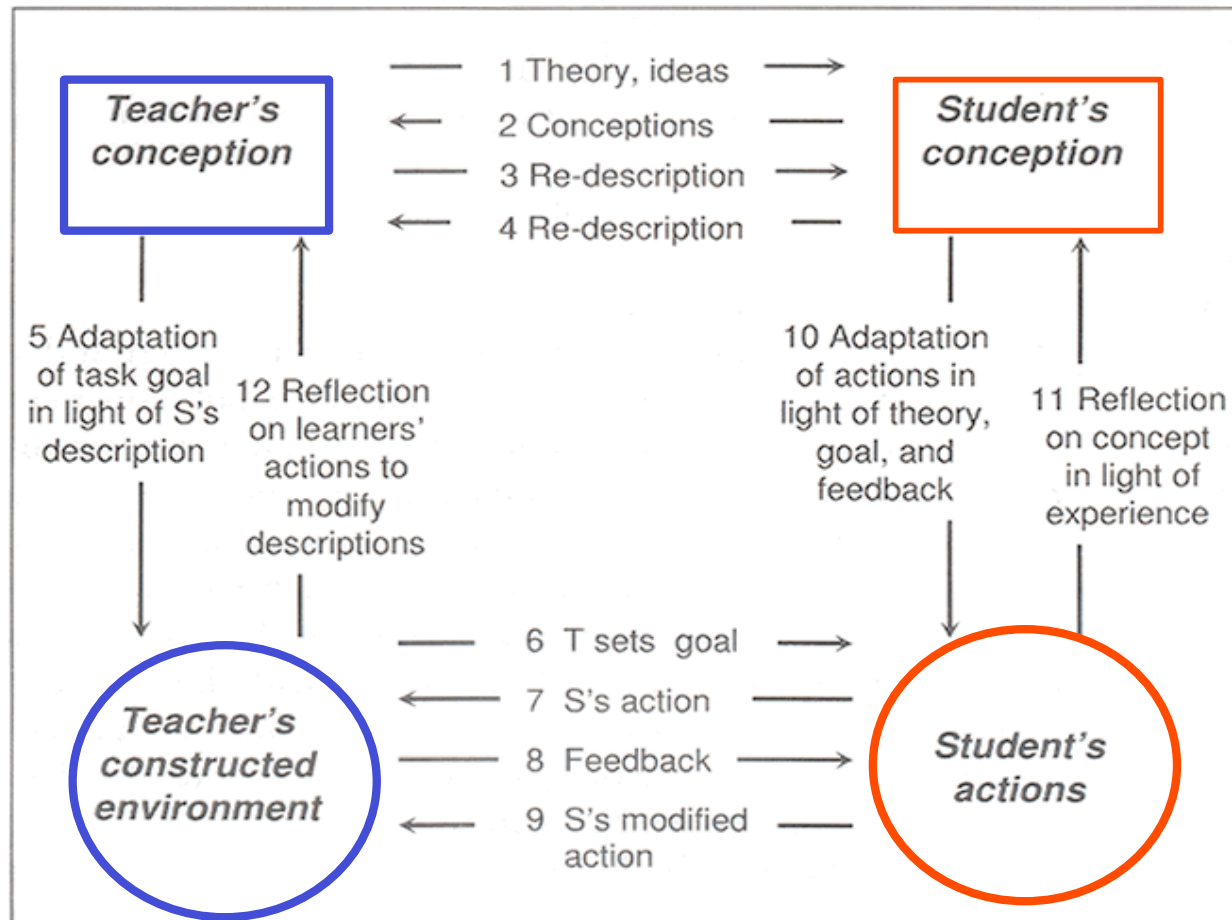

"I know so much that I don't know where to begin."

What is the problem?

- Dominance of the Transmission Model
 - Each new technology driven into its service
 - Book, lecture, word-processing, TV & video, videoconference, multimedia, the web

Laurillard's Conversational Framework

The difference between a curriculum that teaches what is known and one that teaches how to come to know

What kinds of eCompetencies are necessary?

- Comfort & confidence in using technology
- Awareness of popular & emerging technologies
- Focus on pedagogy over technology
- Technologies which support real learning
 - Communication, interaction, exploration, projects, new representations, etc

Challenges

- Cannot be separated from need to “professionalise” approaches to teaching
- Must be embedded in career progression
- Seek synergies between Teaching & Research roles
- Staff development must be a scholarly activity, research-led

October 31 - November 7, 2003

 Thu, Nov 06, 2003 -- Thursday November 5th - Welcome to week four!
Hi everyone

Well, after the frantic pace of the first three weeks... now is a good time to take a breath and reflect on all that we have learnt together... the level of discussion in this group is excellent and we have explored some interesting topics.

So here we are at week four! The best strategy for this week is to visit often because in this session we aim to build new knowledge together: something that didn't exist in our own minds before we started... so there needs to be a lot of interaction and discussion.

Let's try to complete this Session by the end of Week 4 (6th - 12th Nov). If you're going to be away for a few days or encounter any difficulties, please let me know.

"The humanities have destroyed themselves..."

"The humanities have destroyed themselves over the past 30 years... Through an obsession with European jargon and a shallow politicization of discourse, the humanities have imploded... There's hardly a campus you can name where the most exciting things that are happening on campus are coming from the humanities departments... I think the entire profession is in withdrawal at the moment. This is a national problem. It's not just a Harvard problem."

So says Camille Paglia in an interview (1) with Open Source radio last night, following on from the recent Harvard discussion. She has for some considerable time been a strong critic of the influence of Derrida and Foucault on American academe.
